Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Wyo, Vol. 11 Class - SHUN!! A voice of authority resounds on the Campus. You are S-L-O-W! - ROTTEN!! - it goes on impersonally, and we identify it as the voice of the naturally urbane Sergeant Hicks. His remarks are directed at two platoons - one hundred or more earnest lads, who, despite the piercing air of a frosty November morning, are scarcely half clad, but are going through the intricacies of feet closed and full - H-OPEN and other startling contortions, tying and untying knots in their young frames at word of command, as though their very lives depended on it! This is P. E. - physical training which has as its aim quickening the mind as well as strengthening the muscles - developing poise and mental alertness no less than sound, well set-up bodies. On another part of the field other young men, similarly half clad and equally oblivious of the cold, are performing various strange evolutions - hopping over saw-bucks, leaping across imaginary trenches with arms flying, jabbing, thrusting, lunging, with naked bayonets at quivering bundles of faggots, now resting on the ground, now swinging from a timber frame. Set faces - bared teeth - every movement accompanied by astonishing grunts or fiercesome growls - there is a deadly earnestness to all this. If anyone forgets momentarily, and smiles, sharp reproof follows instantly, for this is bayonet training, and its slogan, whether called by devil-dog or doughboy, is treat em rough! And in the class room! Men everywhere! The instructor enters. Once again - Class, SHUN! - and with a vast clattering of army brogans and university furniture the men are on their feet, eyes to...
