Excerpt: . dimensions, which is constructed of bamboo in small strips, made smooth and round like wire. The pulp is continually agitated by other, hands, while one is taking up the sheets, which are then laid upon smooth tables to dry. According to others, the paper is dried by placing the newly made sheets upon a heated wall, and rubbing them with brushes until dry. This paper is unfit for writing on with liquid ink, and is of a yellowish colour. The Chinese size it by dipping the sheets in a solution of fish glue and alum, either during or after the first process of making it. The sheets are usually three feet and a half in length, and two in breadth. The fine paper used for letters is polished after sizing by rubbing it with smooth stones. What is commonly known in this country under the name of Indian ink is nothing more than what the Chinese manufacture for their own writing. The writing apparatus consists of a square of this ink; a little black slab of schistus or slate, polished smooth, with a depression at one end to hold water; a small brush, or pencil of rabbit's hair, inserted into a reed handle; and a bundle of paper. These four articles, the ink the slab on which it is rubbed, the writing brush, and the paper, are not required in their printing, where the ink is of a thicker consistency. 1-This is found in the...
