RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 100 pages. Original publisher: Washington: U. S. G. P. O. : For sale by the Supt. of Docs. , U. S. G. P. O. , 2007. LC Number: KF27 . S6396 2007a OCLC Number: (OCoLC)193760674 Subject: Small business -- Data processing -- Security measures -- United States. Excerpt: . . . 11 of our members are small IT businesses who provide integrated computer systems to American small business. The IT needs of American small business are mainly addressed by an important segment of the computer industry called value-added resellers, or VARs. VARs create and maintain, for example, the computer system in your dentists office, the on-line store in which you shop on the Internet, and for your local plumber. VARs are on the front line of Americas defense against IT security threats. An estimated 32, 000 American VARs buy and resell about one-third of all computer hardware and software in the United States today, mostly to small businesses. Also Madam Chair, for most people who work in the computer technology industry, CompTIA is well-known for its non-policy re-lated services to the entire IT industry. Non-technical standards, industry education, and particularly relevant to this hearing, pro-fessional IT certifications. Some of the services that we offer that are relevant to this hearing include we have developed and man-aged the industrys standard basic professional certification for cyber security, which we call Security . While almost one million American technology workers today hold some type of professional certification from CompTIA, around 35, 000 hold this Security cer-tification. Over the past year, we have launched educational programs for thousands of our members on the technical implications of Gramm-Leach-Bliley and HIPAA regulations for small businesses. And in doing so have introduced the technical issues...
