From the principle presented in Arts. 309 to 315, we deduce the following. $36000 at 1 produces $1 per day interest. $36000 at 2 produces $2 per day interest. $36000 at 3 produces $3 per day interest. $36000 at 7 produces $7 per day interest. 333. The interest on $36000 at 7 for 59 days is $7 \times $59$ or $413. The interest on $36000 at 11 for 329 days is $11 \times $329$ or $3619. 334. This principle affords an instant method of determining what fraction of the amount is the principal, or in other words the ratio of the principal to the amount. Example: What fraction of the amount is the principal, the time being 69 days, and the rate 7 ? $7 \times $69 = $483 =$ interest on $36000 for 69...
