CHRISTIAN TEACHINGS ON THE PRACTICE OF PRAYER: FROM THE EARLY CHURCH TO THE PRESENT

New Seeds January 2006, 2006. Paper Back. Condition: New. 'Pray without ceasing,' wrote Paul to the Thessalonians. A daunting directive, if ever there was one. But Lorraine Kisly-editor of the journal Parabola-has managed to collect here a remarkable anthology of writings on prayer that creatively becomes a book about the ways we instinctively pray and can learn to pray with more and more of our heart's means and attention. This is no random assembling of deep thoughts by quirky intellectuals and mystics. By Kisly's deft mind and hand, these passages both progress and reflect upon each other as the chapters move through a series of twelve cycles including repentance, lectio divina, the Our Father, contemplation, attention, and keeping a personal rule of prayer. Her canvas is broad, from relatively unknown Orthodox monks to famed poets (W.B. Yeats and Gerard Manley Hopkins), Catholic mystics, early Church Fathers, French philosophers (Jacques Ellul), German existentialists (Martin Heidegger), and an array of novelists and theologians of all persuasions (Dostoevsky, Aldous Huxley, Flannery O'Connor, Paul Tillich, Reinhold Niebuhr, and Hans Urs Von Balthasar). Her opening selection by Cistercian abbot André Louf is most encouraging in its proposal that prayer 'is something we always carry about, like a hidden treasure of which we are not consciously aware.' Somewhere, he maintains, 'our heart is going full pelt' but must be 'woken up, gradually-through the course of a whole lifetime.' 263 pp.
