Excerpt: . . . 11 And obviously I am acquainted with this because of my leadership on the Senate Finance Committee for a long period of time. I want to refer to a recent Wall Street Journal series examining fraud of health: Medicare often fails to stop questionable payments up front because of the pay and chase system occurring for a number of reasons. It is a major vulnerability. I authored legislation last year to correct some of this, and I think that is the next logical step in combating health fraud. Additionally, the Wall Street Journal article pointed out how a three-decade-old court decision made in 1979 protects physician privacy by limiting the release of physician billing records. A former Department of Justice official is quoted in the article as saying that, We should make these records public. At least I think it is time to revisit this issue and bring some transparency to this whole thing. Mr. Breuer and Mr. West, do you agree that we should consider revisiting the privacy protections for physician billing records in Federal health care programs And if not, why not REUER Mr. B. Well, Mr. Chairman, I want to begin by thanking and applauding you for your leadership, and we take that very much to heart. In our prosecutions we use the tools you have provided for us, and we are very pleased with how our Medicare Fraud Strike Forces are working. We would absolutely want to work with you on these kinds of issues and have the dialog, but we also do believe, I should say, that we do have right...
