Excerpt: . . . form of the total output, but on actual returns for all operators in Michigan who reported to the Federal Trade Commission during the period August-December, 1917 are as follows: run of mine, 40 per cent; prepared sizes, 37 per cent; slack, 23 per cent. If the entire output of the four operators had been sold at the prices established October 27, 1917, it would have brought them a sales realization of 3.10 per ton. Effective November 1, 1917, a 45-cent increase in the price of noncontracted coal was allowed by Executive order to take care of an increase in the wage scale at that time. The average labor cost of the four operators in 1917 was 2.57 per ton, an increase of 62 cents over the average for April-October, 1917, but of only 23 cents over that of October 1917. As the production during October was 93,833 tons, and 1 during November 96,630 tons, as against a monthly average output of 33,315 tons during April-October, 1917, it is probable that 23 (1 rather than 62 cents more nearly reflects the increase in cost due to wage increase of November 1, 1917. The total f. o. b. mine cost of 111,161 tons for November was 3.21 per ton, the sales realized 4.14, and the margin 93 cents per ton. Effective November 30, 1917, new maximum prices for certain Michigan operators were fixed by the Fuel Administration. In the...
