WILLIAM MACLAY, UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM PENNSYLVANIA, 1789-1791 (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from William Maclay, United States Senator From Pennsylvania, 1789-1791 After the Federal Constitution had been ratified by a sufficient number of states, the different commonwealths proceeded to elect senators and representatives to the new Congress. Several interesting characters were thereby called into public life, among them being William Maclay, a native of Chester County. The subject of this sketch was but five years old, when the father led his family to the Scotch-Irish settlement in what is now Franklin County. Here young Maclay grew to manhood and became prominent in colonial affairs. He was soon attracted to the upper Susquehanna region, and figured in the pioneer settlement of Sunbury. After the close of the Revolutionary War, probably in 1786, he changed his residence to Harrisburg, and from this place, he was called to the first senate of the United States. Although the public career of William Maclay is identified with other portions of the State, Chester County claims him as a son by birth. In January, 1789, the Pennsylvania Assembly chose Robert Morris, of Philadelphia, and William Maclay, of Harrisburg, to represent this State in the United States Senate. As it was arranged that one-third of the body should retire every two years, it became necessary for the first Senators to draw their terms by lot. The long term of six years fell to Robert Morris, while William...
