The setup for measurement was the same used during the evaluation of maximum suction (fig. During evaluation, each suction system was run for 30 seconds with the tubing clamped; following this, the system was shut off for 15 seconds, and then run again for 30 seconds. This was repeated until a 25 reduction in maximum pressure was observed. Prior to this evaluation, each suction system was charged for at least 24 hours. Only one trial was performed on each system.
