

Dear Dods: Letters From A Conscientious Objector in WWII (Paperback)

By Art Bryant

AUTHORHOUSE, United States, 2009. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. When Art was drafted in early 1943 it was the beginning of four years of service to his country. He first served in a camp for conscientious objectors for seven months, and then was briefly at home, followed by assignment to a Medical Replacement Center in Texas. After three weeks in Pennsylvania preparing for overseas shipment, he was returned to Texas and assigned as company clerk in a unit preparing for overseas duty. Art was then transferred to MAC OCS preparing for his two years of service as an officer. Excerpts from the letters exchanged between Art and wife, Dods, tell the story. It is a powerful story of a unique wartime experience; not as someone remembered it years later, but as the letters were written, in the heat of the moment, as decisions of conscience and character were required. In letters never intended to be read by anyone other than his Dods, this soldier tells of the struggle he and others experienced seeking to serve conscience and country while conscripted into often conflicting circumstances. At CPS: no real mission except for the limited time actually fighting...

READ ONLINE
[3.88 MB]

Reviews

This ebook may be worth a read, and far better than other. It is among the most incredible ebook i have read. You will like the way the article writer publish this publication.

-- Candace Raynor

This written book is excellent. it absolutely was writtern extremely completely and useful. You may like how the article writer write this ebook.

-- Dayton Stracke I