Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Miracles and the Miraculous The argument in brief is that, while the existence of a Personal Ruler of the Universe must be assumed in order to render miracles conceivable, the nobler the conception that is formed of each a Being the more incredible do miracles become, and therefore the more probably false the documents which record them. And if the prophet be deceived when he hath spoken a thing, I the Lord have deceived that prophet, and i will stretch oat my hand upon him, and will destroy him.-Ezekiel xiv., 9. Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen, the rules of this Society implicitly permit the speakers in any debate to bring forward arguments which they do not really trust, and to espouse, and even earnestly urge, views and opinions to which they do not at all subscribe. And I think, Sir, the permission is a wisp one, because the primary object of our Society is not by any means to refute error or disseminate truth. Its ordinary function is far more modest. We meet to exercise ourselves and one another in debate, to cultivate the art of public speaking, and to learn how to overcome that importunate bashfulness which is constantly pulling at an inexperienced speaker s coat-tails while he is addressing an audience. But on an occasion like this, when a subject is to be discussed which involves the dearest interests of so many whose opinions are entitled to the highest respect, I beg you to believe that I shall endeavour to set the ration with absolute fairness before you, that I shall adduce no argument which does not recommend itself by its soundness, and...
