(probably into tsh) has been avoided, and the z employed, in which manner the concluding radical remains apparent., n, 1 The Galla has two participles, one of which is the participle of the present and narrative past tense; it is inflected through all the six persons, and provided with a special form for the feminine; and it is capable therefore of a precise application in the sentence. The second is the past participle, corresponding with the perfect and pluperfect of the Latin. 153. The first evidently consists of the I. preterit (aorist) tense and the particle ti affixed, the persons of this tense remaining entirely unchanged; except that in the i pers. sing. the personal pronoun ani, I, is appended, whereby the t in ti is lost; thus ademe-t(i)-ani becomes ademetani. 154. Great care, however, must be taken with these participial forms, not to mistake...
