Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Report of the Architect of Public Buildings, 1852: Accompanying the President s Message at the Second Session of the Thirty-Second Congress Architects Office, United States Capitol, Washington, D.C., December 1, 1852.Sir: In conformit to a resolution of the Senate of the United States, passed August 26, 1852, I have the honor to lay before you the i oUowing nbstract or compendium of my annual report, which is herewith submitted: Extension of the Capitol. The appropriation for continuing the w-ork not having been made until the 3 4 th of April last, the buildings are not as far advanced as I anticipated at the date of my last annual report. The contracts all being limited to existing appropriations, the contractors were not at liberty to make preparations for supplying materials until after the passage of the bill. As soon as the appro)riation was made, the contractors promptly commenced operations, and the work has since been prosecuted as rapidly as a proper regard for its permanency, durability, and beauty would warrant. The cellars of both wings are completed, the arches to support the basement floors ai efinished, and the outside marble work is)rogrcssing rajjldly. All the foundations are permanently laid on the natural, undisturbed earth; some of them are 40 ft deep, and none less than 15 feet below the ground line of the building. The character of the earth under all the walls is the sameythroughout, being a stratum of compact gravel of several feet in tlickness The walls are all built widi great care, and the entire sub-structure is massive and solid; The stones of which these foundations are constructed were tested, at the...
