GRILLING ALONE; THE DARK SIDE OF SOCIAL CAPITAL IN MALMÖUML;

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | Exploring impacts of social networks in the integration of an Afghan community | Increasing societal integration and improving the quality of life are among the fundamental themes of urban sustainable development. In defining their vision of a Sustainable City, the municipality of Malmö, Sweden stresses the importance of having an integrated, multi-cultural society. However, as its large immigrant population continues to face issues of non-integration, Malmö still has many obstacles to overcome on its path to sustainability. This research examines two facets of Social Capital – bonding and bridging networks to explore the quality of social relations and ties within Afghan refugees in Malmö by conducting qualitative research focusing on Afghan students between ages of 15-20. While social capital can provide a bridge between immigrants and their inclusion in Swedish society, this research finds that the respondents rely on their high-levels of inter-connectivity among other groups of immigrants. This can act as a substitute for the lack of "bridging" social capital, not being utilized by the respondents, but has consequences for the sustainability of the city as a whole as it also reinforces the reliance on bonding social capital. | Format: Paperback | Language/Sprache: english | 52 pp.
