Yet when the end of the Civil War prostrated his fortune and he became old and almost blind his easy dignity lost no feature of its serene composure, and out of his true heart came no complaint of man or fortune. As we view this portrait we seem to recognize the source of that peculiar charm which Daniel s colleague, Senator Lodge, so beautifully characterized, that grave courtesy, which never wavered; these manners, serious, gracious, elaborate, if you please, but full of kindness and thought for others, which can never really grow old or pass out of fashion, even in our hurried, hustling time. The winged years sweep swiftly past and soon a fresh picture greets our view. We see on the rostrum of the Lynchburg Military College a handsome youth of 16 years. His inborn tastes for debate and declamation have already declared themselves, and John Daniel has been selected to represent his class. The world was still thrilling with the blood-stained story of Balaklava when Daniel rose to his feet and with impassioned eloquence recited to his auditors a poem new to most of them - Tennyson s immortal Charge of the Light Brigade. Forward the Light Brigade! Was there a man dismayed? Not tho the soldier knew Some one had blundered - Their s not to make reply; Their s not to reason why; Their s but to do and die; Into the Valley of Death Rode...
