Excerpt from History of the Hartsville Ladies Aid Society: Organized November 15, 1861 The firing on Fort Sumter, which so thoroughly aroused the people of the United States, reached our little village and awaked the patriotic spirit, which the people had inherited from their revolutionary fathers. A firm determination to sustain the government by force of arms pervaded every heart; but there seemed no immediate call for action. A company left Doylestown for the three months service; this was the nearest point where military movements were made, and the equipping and sending forth of this company required but little sacrifice on the part of our quiet people. It was not until after the terrible battle of Bull Run and the hospitals at Washington were filled with our sick and wounded soldiers, that an appeal was made for clothing and delicacies, which reached us. In August, by especial effort, a box of clothing and one of delicacies were prepared and forwarded to Washington, but as yet the ladies had not felt the necessity of forming themselves into a society for continued and...

Reviews

The publication is simple in go through preferable to fully grasp. I am quite late in start reading this one, but better then never. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.
