Darwins Lost Theory

By David Loye

Benjamin Franklin Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 356 pages. Dimensions: 8.9in. x 6.0in. x 1.2in. Evolution Science Darwin Biography Powerfully contradicting the stereotype of survival of the fittest and selfish gene Darwinism, this is the new third edition of pioneering evolutionary scientist David Loyes acclaimed reconstruction of Darwins long ignored fully human completion for his theory of evolution. It shows how in page after page of Darwins own original writing, Darwin makes the case for the primacy of love, moral sensitivity, mutual aid, and education as higher order drivers for human evolution. The new edition has been revised and updated with indexes tailored to the needs of an exceptionally wide range of readers philosophers, theologians, teachers and students in all fields, as well as scientists and general readers looking for an extremely important book with an easy and engaging style. In Part I: A Young Mans Bold Vision, we get to know Darwin in the critical months during which, in long unpublished private notebooks, he first wrote of what became the first part of his theory of evolution, for which he became famous, but also the revolutionary and still largely ignored completion for his theory. In Part II: An Old Mans...
